IMPEACHMENT TRIAL RESUMED

EDWARD J. WILLIAMS GIVES SOME DAMAGING EVIDENCE AGAINST ARCHBOLD.

(BY UNITED PRESS.) WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 5.—New Judge Archbold of the Commerce Court drew up an arraignment for the now famous option on the Kuylenburg bank, in the case of which it is alleged the Judge was to have a half interest, and how the Judge obtained a secret partnership in a bank and other plans was slowly drawn from the reluctant lips of Edward J. Williams the real option speculator in the impeachment trial resumed today.

Representative Webb was so well as his insidious cross-examination and finally the witness returned answers of "I don't know" or "I may be." Williams would agree to the point made when referred to from the other trial. He stood by his word to Archbold, and gave his testimony a voice very low while he required.
